EXHIBIT A

DESCRIPTION OF THE TRANSACTIONS

Description of AAFAF

The Puerto Rico Fiscal Agency and Financial Advisory Authority (“AAFAF”) is an independent public corporation and governmental instrumentality with separate legal existence, fiscal and administrative autonomy, and independence from the Government of Puerto Rico. AAFAF was created for the purpose of acting as fiscal agent, financial advisor and reporting agent of the Government of Puerto Rico, its agencies, instrumentalities, subdivisions, public corporations and/or municipalities (hereinafter collectively referred to as the “Government”). AAFAF has assumed the majority of the fiscal agency and financial advisory responsibilities that were previously held by Government Development Bank for Puerto Rico. AAFAF is also empowered to negotiate and execute any type of contract, including all instruments and agreements necessary or convenient to exercise the powers and functions conferred to AAFAF by its enabling act.

Description of the PRHFA

The Puerto Rico Housing Finance Authority (“PRHFA”) is a public corporation and governmental instrumentality of the Government. Previously known as the Puerto Rico Housing Finance Corporation, the PRHFA was created as a subsidiary of GDB pursuant to Resolution No. 4023, adopted by the Board of Directors of GDB on November 16, 1977, in accordance with the GDB Enabling Act. Subsidiaries of GDB, by virtue of the powers conferred in the GDB’s enabling act, are governmental instrumentalities of the Government, legally independent of and separate from GDB. Pursuant to Act No. 103 of August 11, 2001, as amended, the Legislature of the Puerto Rico transferred to the PRHFA all rights and functions of the Puerto Rico Housing Bank and Finance Agency and gave the Authority its current name.

The PRHFA provides financing for rental housing units, stimulates the construction industry under federally subsidized programs and provides interim and permanent financing for low-income housing projects and single-family homeownership programs. The PRHFA is also authorized to issue notes and bonds to achieve its corporate purposes and to grant direct loans, insure loans and purchase loans, including mortgage-backed-securities, from private lenders for the construction, improvement, reconstruction, rehabilitation, enlargement or repair of affordable housing projects for persons and families of low-income.
Summary of the Issuance of Exempt Debt by the PRHFA

Overview

The PRHFA proposes to issue tax-exempt obligations\(^1\) that qualify under Section 103 of the IRS Code (as defined below) (the “Tax-Exempt Obligations”), and the private activity bond regulations. The objective of the Program (as defined below) is to leverage 4% LIHTC (as defined below) and Tax-Exempt Obligations to extend the impact of Community Development Block Grant Disaster Recovery Funds (“CDBG-DR”) funding with the aim of increasing affordable rental properties to families in Puerto Rico (“Housing Projects”) (the “Program”). PRHFA will use the proceeds of the issuance of the Tax-Exempt Obligations to make non-recourse loans to developers of Housing Projects (“Developers”) on a project-by-project basis as described below (the “Project Loan”).

The proposed Tax-Exempt Obligations of the PRHFA are subject to the consideration and approval by the boards of directors of PRHFA, AAFAF, and the Financial Oversight and Management Board for Puerto Rico (the “Oversight Board”).

Issuance Amount

The potential aggregate maximum amount of the Tax-Exempt Obligations to be issued pursuant to the Program is $670,828,935, which is equal to the entire private activity bond volume cap assigned to the Government by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service for the years 2019 and 2020.

Transaction Documents and Terms

The Tax-Exempt Obligation will be issued pursuant to the terms of a Master Indenture Agreement (the “Master Indenture”) to be entered into by the PRHFA and a financial institution that will serve as indenture trustee (the “Trustee”) to be selected by AAFAF. Each series of the Tax-Exempt Obligations to be issued shall include the terms related to the specific Project Loan, including but not limited to, the interest rate, the maturity of the Project Loan, the required collateral, and such other terms and conditions of each Project Loan, which terms shall be included in a supplemental indenture to the Master Indenture (the “Supplemental Indenture”). In addition to the Supplemental Indenture, the PRHFA shall enter into a Loan Agreement with the Developers, which will include the terms and conditions of such Project Loan (the “Loan Agreement”). The rights of the PRHFA under the Loan Agreement shall be ceded, assigned, transferred and pledged to the Trustee for the benefit of the specific holders of each series of the Tax-Exempt Obligations (the “Trust Estate”).

Purchaser of the Tax-Exempt Obligations

It is expected that each series of the Tax-Exempt Obligations shall be acquired either: (i) by investors through an issuance of tax-exempt bonds; or (ii) by private financial institutions, including but not limited

\(^1\) Section 103(a) of the IRS Code, as defined herein, provides an exclusion from gross income on interests on any “State or local bonds.” Although the reference is made to “bonds,” the definition of “State or local bond” under Section 103(c)(1) of the IRS Code means “an obligation of a State or political subdivision thereof” (emphasis ours). We will then refer in this memorandum to “Obligations” instead of “bonds” in recognition of the flexibility of the type of obligations that are afforded tax-exempt treatment under Section 103 of the IRS Code given the definition of “State or local bonds.”
to commercial banks that are interested in receiving the tax-exempt interest income generated by the Tax-Exempt Obligations though the issuance of promissory notes resembling the terms of a construction loan. In order to invest in the Tax-Exempt Obligations, the purchaser shall co-underwrite with PRHFA (for purpose of allocation of CDBG-DR funds), structure, and approve the credit and legal terms and conditions of the specific series of the Tax-Exempt Obligations, which shall mirror the terms and conditions of the Loan Agreement for the specific Project Loan.

Limited Obligation Characteristic of the Tax-Exempt Obligations

The Tax-Exempt Obligation shall be non-recourse obligations of the PRHFA which means that each series of the Tax-Exempt Obligations is payable exclusively by the Developer through the terms of the corresponding Loan Agreement. The principal of and the redemption premium, if any, and interest of the Tax-Exempt Obligation are limited obligation of the PRHFA which are secured by a pledge and assignment of the Trust Estate. The Tax-Exempt Obligation does not constitute a debt, obligation or a pledge of the credit of the Government or any of its agencies, public corporations, municipalities, or political subdivisions, other than the PRHFA as a limited non-recourse obligor, and neither the Government nor any of its agencies, public corporations, municipalities or instrumentalities, other than the PRHFA as a limited non-recourse obligor, shall be liable for the payment of the Tax-Exempt Obligations.

The Tax-Exempt Obligation is not an obligation or liability insured or guaranteed by the United States of America or the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development or any other governmental agency.

Tax-Exempt Status of the Tax-Exempt Obligation and the LIHTC

U.S. Tax exemption

The Tax-Exempt Obligation would qualify as tax-exempt obligation under Section 103 of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the “IRS Code”). Section 103 of the IRS Code will allow the purchasers of the Tax-Exempt Obligations to deduct the interest income from such debt from their federal gross income taxes if the Tax-Exempt Obligation complies with the requirements of such section of the IRS Code.

Puerto Rico Tax Exemption

Interest on the Tax-Exempt Obligation is also exempt from taxation from the Government, its political subdivisions and instrumentalities.

Low Income Housing Tax Credits

Section 42 of the IRS Code recognizes a funding alternative for certain housing projects through the issuance of 4% Low-income Housing Tax Credits (“4% LIHTC”). These tax credits are available through the issuance of tax-exempt private activity obligations, such as the Tax-Exempt Obligations, which provide “as-of-right” (non-competitive) the 4% LIHTC for housing projects that meet certain requirements. Projects that receive at least 50% of their funding through tax-exempt financing, such as the Tax-Exempt Obligations, are eligible for the 4% LIHTC, which can be claimed over a 10-year period and are subject to a 15-year compliance period.
Terms of the Project Loans

The Housing Projects shall be approved by the PRHFA pursuant to its policies and compliance analysis of the proposed projects. Successful Developers of Housing Projects that are selected by the PRHFA will be able to leverage the use of CDBG-DR funds with the 4% LIHTC and the financing obtained by the Project Loans through the issuance of the Tax-Exempt Obligation.

Although the PRHFA will select the Housing Projects that qualify for financing through the Project Loans, the terms of the Loan Agreements and thus the terms of the specific series of the Tax-Exempt Obligations shall depend on the terms put forward by the purchaser of such obligations. Since the Tax-Exempt Obligations will be non-recourse obligations of the PRHFA payable exclusively from the Loan Agreement, the terms of the specific series of the Tax-Exempt Obligations will mirror the terms of the Loan Agreement. Terms such as the interest rate, maturity, required collateral, amortization of principal or repayment schedules, disbursement requirements, affirmative and negative covenants, conditions to closing, among others will be proposed and negotiated by the purchaser of the Tax-Exempt Obligations and subject to the approval of the PRHFA in order to assure compliance with applicable statutes, regulations and policies applicable to the financing. Said terms also need to be reviewed and analyzed by Bond Counsel in order to assure that none of them risk the validity of the Tax-Exempt Obligations and their tax status as tax-exempt obligations under Section 103 of the IRS Code.
